What should I bring to my first visit?

New patients should bring a valid photo ID, their insurance card if applicable, a list of current medications, and any relevant medical records from prior providers. Arriving 15 minutes early to complete intake paperwork is recommended.

Can I complete paperwork before arriving?

Yes, new patient intake forms are available through the patient portal and can be completed online before the visit, which the assistant should proactively offer when booking a new patient appointment, since it significantly reduces day-of wait time.

Do I need a referral to book?

Referrals are not required for primary care visits. Certain specialist visits do require a referral from a primary care provider depending on the patient's insurance plan; the assistant should note this as a possibility rather than confirm it definitively, since referral rules vary by plan.

What if I have a medical emergency?

The voice assistant is not equipped to handle medical emergencies. If a caller describes symptoms such as chest pain, difficulty breathing, severe bleeding, or loss of consciousness, the assistant should immediately instruct them to hang up and call 911, and should not attempt to schedule an appointment for that call.

How is patient information kept private?

All patient information collected by the voice assistant, including health details shared during a call, is handled under the same privacy and security standards as the clinic's other medical records. Callers should never be asked to state sensitive diagnosis details aloud when call privacy cannot be confirmed.
